

5TH FORM PRACTICE TEST

UNIT 9

1- Read the following:

The world's oldest noodles

A team of archaeologists have found a bowl of 50 cm- long yellow noodles under the ground in North West China. They believe the noodles are about 4,000 years old.

The team also found skeletons of people in this area. 'We believe there was a big earthquake and the people were trying to run away,' Professor Wang told reporters.

'One of these people was probably eating noodles when the disaster happened.'

Professor Wang, aged 42 from Shanghai, China, believes these noodles are made from millet flour and not wheat flour like modern noodles.

'The discovery is very exciting for the people in China,' he said. 'Before we found these 4,000-year-old noodles, nobody knew which country invented noodles. Now we know the truth. Noodles are Chinese!'

The 4,000-year-old noodles are so well-preserved, they almost look eatable.
