Texting Teens

Recent surveys show a dramatic increase in the amount of texting by teenagers. One survey says that more than 66% of teenagers own a mobile, and they send about 190 texts per week! Some teenagers send hundreds of texts a day. In fact, many teenagers spend so much time texting, they can't imagine life without their mobile ...

So why do teenagers like texting? What makes it better than phone calls? Many teens say that texting is easier, faster and more fun. Texts are private- they can send texts during class time and no-one can hear what they're saying. Texts are cheaper- on a lot of phones, you can have unlimited texts: it makes no difference if you send one text or a hundred texts, the cost is the same.

Teenagers also say that texting is the best way to stay in touch with friends. They don't feel lonely or sad because they can talk to their friends any time. It's nice to get texts from friends, and it helps them feel relaxed if they are nervous or depressed. But texting has a negative side too. Too much texting can make your thumbs hurt!
